Folk family shares passion for antique tractors with larger community Antique tractor enthusiasts and aficionados convened near Templeton during the first weekend of July for a tractor show hosted by Folk and Sons Antique Tractors.

The Folk and Sons Antique Tractors show had 87 tractors in attendance. They held their first show last year after the farm was acquired by Aaron Folk.

"It's been a family deal from the beginning, [hunting] antique tractors, traveling the country together, buying, reselling," Nate Folk said. "We just try to restore a little bit of history... we enjoy getting everything out and anybody can come and
