and make it bags.

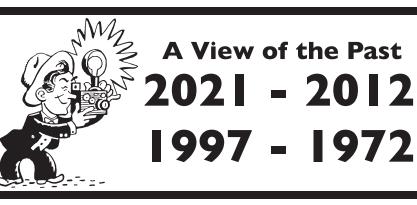

In November, 17 students from students' interest in math, to develop their problem-solving skills and to inspire them to excel in math.

More than 25,900 students representing 533 schools across the country took part in this fall's contest. Team winners for S-F were Connor Mitchell, fifth grade, and Wyatt Platt, eighth grade.

Nine students received National Honorable Mention. This title is awarded to the top 50 percent of participating mathletes. This included Paige Holtz, Graydon Leete, Natalie Sorensen, Owen Henderson, Carly Krueger, Mitchell, Platt, Natalie Prosser and Paxton Frost.

"Congratulations to all the winners. The contest results demonstrate our students' great problem-solving skills and their math talents, commented Kroenecke. "They also show that our students can rise to the occasion and can meet the challenge."

Communities around the globe rely on the generosity of individuals and organizations to thrive and make it a better place for all and the city of Fredericksburg is no exception. For the past 58 years, Verla Steege has been volunteering her time at Peace United Church of Christ (UCC), Fredericksburg.

The S-F Middle School students showed off their talents at the winter choir and band concerts Thursday, Dec. 16. It was a night filled with Christmas cheer as fifth- through eighth-grade students performed solos, duets and a variety of skits, along with choir and band performances as well.

Despite the wintry weather, the Fredericksburg Community Center was filled with activity and holiday cheer Friday, Dec. 10, as Upham Memorial Library held its highly anticipated Christmas Family Fun Night. The S-F Cougar girls basketball team wrapped up a busy week with games on the road and at home. The Cougars are 5-2 in conference play and 6-3 overall according to Varsity Bound. Dec. 20, 2012

Taking a look at the Fredericksburg community, one can see the impact the residents have on the city and the people. One such person is Gail Holmes, who has made it to the top-10 of the Stormy Kromer Mercantile's Living Legend contest. Holmes' husband, Darrel, nominated her for this award after he heard about it through Facebook and the company website.

Early next year, the Chickasaw County Public Health will start its new mentoring program called Star Mentoring. Program coordinator Kim Boos said the program will serve the youth within Chickasaw County. This includes the communities of New Hampton, Nashua and Fredericksburg.

Many people have been talking about the spectacle of Santa Claus driving around Fredericksburg, on the weekends, on an un-styled A John Deere tractor. People have flagged Claus down to have their picture taken with him and his tractor, while others stand in their yards waving. The S-F Cougar boys worked hard last week to improve their record to 5-3 and 4-1 in the Upper Iowa Conference. Kyster Allen takes a shot against the Kee Hawk defense during the varsity game Dec. 13.

There were some trainings she would attend but she didn't attend special schooling. She commented the League of Cities helped her and there were many resources she had access to help her figure out what to do. When it was time to do the first budget amendment by herself, she reviewed paperwork from previous years.

"The first time I did the budget, we had worked on stuff together so I was kind of familiar with it but I didn't know how they budgeted it. I just got it out and followed it through, so I learned on the job and reached out for resources I needed. Ray Niewoehner was mayor then so he was a great help," she added.

Over there years there have been several things Lantow has enjoyed most about working as the city's clerk, administrator and deputy clerk. She commented she liked meeting the people and getting to know them along with watching the city grow. She was very excited when she could help with activities to make the city a better place.

"The most rewarding thing was meeting the people and being happy people were moving to town along with promoting out town. Also feeling I exceeded and did really well at my career because I felt this was more than just a job, I felt it was my life," she explained. "I cared and I wanted to it be right and I wanted our town to have a good impression to people. If I went places I wanted to be able to give a good impression I was from Fredericksburg and people would want to come here.'

Although there were many rewarding aspects to her career, Lantow also faced challenges. One challenge was she always wanted to please everyone and to not upset anyone. In her role there were times when she would have to tell people what they did not want to hear, which was hard, but it had to be done so it was the same for all.

The decision came to retire this year because Lantow decided it was time for a change. She expressed she loves her job but she needed to be able to live her life, do some things she wanted to do and have less stress.

"I will miss the people because there are people I've met along the way. Citizens I'll see most of them but there are some people I've met along my career path I won't see again because my connections are through the city. Some of those people I consider to be my friends," she added.

Her plans for retirement include visiting family who lives on the East and West Coasts, being there for her parents more, working some at Quilter's Window, New Hampton, working on her quilts and continuing to volunteer her time. Some of the organizations Lantow volunteers with now include Plum Creek Art, Main Street Boosters, Fredericksburg Community Development Corporation and her church, St. Paul's She also plans to continue helping with the Fredericksburg Food Bank.

What drew Lantow to join these organizations was she likes to help people, and if she can see a way to reach out to help someone she wants to try These organizations also help promote the city and provide activities for its residents.

"I feel honored I can work with these groups and then hopefully by working with them we can make a difference," she commented. "The rewarding part is seeing what we accomplished and making the town a better place. That's truly all I ever wanted was for our town to be better and for people to want to move to Fredericksburg.

Growing up, Lantow did not do a lot of volunteering but in her adult years there have been different opportunities This includes where people would talk about things she would find interesting to be a part of, and she stated when Bryan O'Day was mayor he got her involved in a lot of things.

"Main Street Boosters is a group of us who just got together and we can have events for people to come to. With my church I volunteered my time as secretary to help a guy come from Africa to become a pastor, and the development corporation is anything we can do to try and keep businesses in town and keep our town growing," she added. "I just felt it was important to help with things and I think it is important to get people involved. The more things we can do or get ideas going we can keep people in town and provide activities.'

Lantow feels it is important for people to volunteer because it takes a village to make things work and it can't be one person to make the town a better place and make a project better. She stated she has heard the phrase, "There is no I in team" and the more people who can get involved then there will be better ideas and more opportunities.

"Some advice for people who are thinking about volunteering is to reach out and see what kind of groups you can volunteer in because it is very rewarding," Lantow added.

College scholarships available from Butler County REC

Butler County Rural Electric Cooperative (REC) is offering college scholarships to help students in the cooperative service territory.

Dependents of members of Butler County REC are encouraged to apply for a $1,000 Basin Electric Power Cooperative college scholarship for tuition at two-year or four-year colleges including vocational and technical schools.

The first-place entrant's application will be sent to Basin and awarded a $1,000 scholarship. The second-place entrant's application will be forwarded to Corn Belt Power Cooperative for the opportunity to be awarded a $1,000 scholarship. If not chosen, the secondplace entrant will receive a $500 scholarship from Butler County REC. The deadline to apply is Wednesday, Feb. 1,2023.

High school seniors residing in the Butler County REC service territory are eligible for one of two $500 scholarships awarded by Butler County REC to those pursuing a degree in a technical/trade industry which supports the cooperative business model and/or electric line apprenticeship program.

Deadline to apply is Monday, March 6, 2023.

More information and applications are available from Butler County REC online at butlerrec.coop or by calling (319) 267-2726. Contact Anne at anne@butlerrec.coop with questions.

The Basin scholarship opportunities are part of a program administered by Basin Electric Power Cooperative, a wholesale power supplier to 131 electric cooperatives in nine states, including Corn Belt Power and Butler County REC.

Butler County REC, established in 1936, is a member-owned electric cooperative providing electricity and related energy programs and services to over 5,000 members throughout Bremer, Butler, Chickasaw and Floyd counties in northeast Iowa. The cooperative also provides wholesale power to the communities of Aplington, Fairbank, Fredericksburg and Readlyn. More information about Butler County REC is online at butlerrec.coop.

Basin, Corn Belt Power and Butler County REC consider their scholarship programs as investments in the economic future of rural areas.
